War Dept Citation for Gallantry in Action
Act Bois de Consenvoye, France, Oct. 12, 1918.
Acting as regimental gas officer upon the evacuation of both surgeons attached to the 1st Battalion, 115th Infantry, then in the assault position, he volunteered for duty as surgeon and cared for the wounded of the command. He displayed rare courage and devotion to the sick and wounded, thereby greatly contributing to the successful operations of the regiment.

War Dept Citation for Gallantry in Action

Near Bois de Consenvoye, Brabant, France, Oct. 10-25, 1918.
Having found a battalion first-aid station without medical officers, due to casualties, he voluntarily took charge and upon several occasions went out in the face of severe enemy artillery and machine-gun fire and brought back badly wounded men.

AEF Citation for Gallantry in Action
For gallantry in action near St.
Etienne, France, October 3-10, 1918, and for his brilliant leadership.

French Croix de Guerre (Palm)
During the operations of October 3-10, 1918, he exposed himself several times to the fire of artillery and machine guns in order to see that his men were well entrenched and that his lines were properly fortified. He showed very great skill in the conduct of his platoon in moving it rapidly to a threatened point at the time of the enemy counter-attack which was repulsed.

Near Soissons, France, July 18, 1918.

When his company was being swept by a withering machine-gun fire from a hidden nest, he voluntarily made his way around the flank of the emplacement and attacked the crew. After causing the crew to flee in disorder, he manned the gun and poured a heavy fire into their retreating ranks.

Distinguished Service Cross
On Oct. 14, while commanding a platoon in the Bois-de-Consenvoye, north of Verdun, he was wounded.
He refused to be sent to the hospital and continued in command of his platoon, doing excellent work until Oct. 16, when he was again severely wounded and carried from the field.
French Croix de Guerre (Palm)
On October 14, 1918, he displayed great courage, coolness and bravery after having been severely wounded in the face. He refused to allow himself to be evacuated, and continued to command his platoon, conducting himself bravely until he was wounded again, and so severely that he had to be carried to the first aid station.

 War Dept Citation for Gallantry in Action
 At Bois de Consenvoye, France, Oct. 9, 1918.

While the advance of his platoon was being held up by machine-gun fire from a tree Private Byrne made his way through heavy and constant fire to a position from which he was able to kill the gunner and rout the remainder of the enemy. His valiant action made possible the further advance of his platoon without serious loss.
French Croix de Guerre (Gilt Star)
Under heavy enemy fire, he killed

For services as chief of the contracts and claims section, Judge Advocate General's Office, from 1917 to 1920, his knowledge of the law, sound judgment, and application enabled him to deal promptly and effectively with the many perplexing questions arising with respect to contracts, requisitions, and compulsory orders which formed the basis of claims against the Gov-

 2 Div Citation for Gallantry in Action
 The three above named battery commanders conducted the fire of their batteries in a most efficient manner under constant exposure and strain and in the face of hostile fire. This from the 5th to the 10th of June, 1918.

French Croix de Guerre (Palm)

In the course of recent operations from October 3-7, 1918, he conducted his battery with greatest skill and executed the most accurate fire. In the course of the attack of Blanc Mont, his battery delivered fire with such precision on a German platoon, that only four men escaped.
French Croix de Guerre (Silver Star)
 On July 21, 1918, at Tigny, he displayed courage in directing the fire of his battery under a violent bombardment.

Action

After carrying their Hotchkiss gun and ammunition up the Cote-St.
Germain, November 6, 1918, the above named men all of Company "A" 14th Machine Gun Battalion took a position upon an uncovered spur of the hill and delivered fire against the enemy who were in a woods several hundred yards distant. They were soon discovered and made the target of intense artillery fire. Utterly disregarding their danger, they held their position and directed a cool and accurate fire, materially assisting in the taking of the hill.

Distinguished Service Cross
Near Thiaucourt, France, Sept. 12-14, 1918.
Commanding a platoon of Stokes mortars, he showed marked bravery and leadership, capturing many prisoners and directing the organization of captured positions with utter disregard of his personal danger. On Sept. 14 he directed the operations of his mortars under an intense artillery and machine-gun fire, until the last one was smashed by shell fire, and having been twice wounded and unable to continue forward, he called his section leaders and ordered them to continue the advance with the Infantry before he would allow himself to be taken to the rear.

The above mentioned men, as motorcycle couriers during the operations engaged in by this Division between October 8 and November 11, 1918, performed their duties faithfully and well. Driving motorcycles mostly by night, and alone under most adverse conditions, they overcame innumerable difficulties.
Working on dark, wet, slippery, congested roads, often under shell fire and through gas, they unfailingly accomplished every one of their missions.

Action
The above named men being runners at 1st Battalion Headquarters, 60th Infantry, did, during the Meuse-Argonne Offensive from October 14 to November 11th, 1918, display great energy and devotion to duty by carrying messages from Battalion Headquarters to Regimental and Company Headquarters most of the time under heavy shell and machine gun fire, thereby rendering great services to the Commanding Officers, and setting a worthy example to their fellow soldiers.

tion Sergt. Coale showed gallantry in action on the night of November 4th, 1918, while in the Meuse sector north of Verdun, when he led a patrol from Hill 360 out to the front at which time the Germans laid down a heavy bombardment which came on his patrol. He kept his patrol in hand and continued his mission until he had secured the information, and returned with his patrol intact.

On the morning of October 9th, during the attack on the ridge west of Corney, Corp. Cole after losing some of his men, still kept his squad intact and remained in the advanced position which his platoon had gained after the rest of the platoon had withdrawn. He also commanded a squad during the attack north of Sommerance on the morning of October 14th. In spite of the hardships he stayed with his men at all times.

160 Inf Brig Citation for Gallantry in Action

For his efficient work on the morning of September 26, 1918. At that time he commanded the Pioneer Platoon of the 320th Infantry and about 100 men from the 305 Engineers and was charged with cutting the wire in front of the infantry at Bethincourt. He stuck to his work, even after the barrage had started, and did it so thoroughly that the infantry was not held up.

 Wounded severely (date not shown)

While engaged on burial detail he was struck with fragment from exploding shrapnel. Although severely wounded he persistently refused to be evacuated but had the wound dressed at a first aid station and kept on with his work. He also rendered valuable services as runner in the Troyon Sector, passing repeatedly through shell swept areas delivering messages with accuracy and promptness.

2 Div Citation for Gallantry in Ac-

Assisted in carrying in wounded, both men were struck by shrapnel bullets and both returned to duty after having wounds dressed. This in the Bois-de-Belleau, June 1st to 30th, 1918.

tion

The twenty-four men above mentioned, observers and scouts of the 2nd Battalion, 5th Marines, are conspicuous for their bravery in action, never once hesitating to perform their duties under most violent shellfire. The observers established and maintained an important observation post for four days under extremely violent machine-gun and artillery fire. The scouts were ever ready to perform extra duties, evacuating wounded, carrying up ammunition under violent artillery barrages, and acting as guides to the front lines on numerous occasions. This northwest of Chateau-Thierry, June 1st to 30th, 1918.

2 Div Citation for Gallantry in Action
At Blanc Mont.

French Croix de Guerre (Gilt Star)
At Belleau Wood, June 11, 1918, acting as battalion liaison agent, made an important reconnaissance and night patrols in front of the lines under violent artillery and machine-gun fire.

French Croix de Guerre (Bronze Star)

He displayed great courage. When wounded by shrapnel he had his wound dressed at once in order to return under a violent artillery fire to transport some wounded comrades.

During the participation in action on Hill 378, north of Verdun, November 5th, to 8th, 1918, this soldier carried several messages and acted as a guide between P.C.'s. On many of these errands he was sniped at continually by enemy machine gun and rifle snipers. In spite of these difficulties he never failed to get his messages through quickly and intelligently. He grasped the importance of his missions and did not hesitate to risk his life repeatedly in the performance of his duties.

Congressional Medal of Honor Near Bois-de-Consenvoye, France, Oct. 8, 1918.

When the advance of his platoon had been held up by machine-gun fire and a request was made for an automatic rifle team to charge the nest, Private Costin was the first to volunteer. Advancing with his team, under terrific fire of enemy artillery, machine guns, and trench mortars, he continued after all his comrades had become casualties and he himself had been seriously wounded. He operated his rifle until he collapsed. His act resulted in the capture of about 100 prisoners and several machine guns. He succumbed from the effects of his wounds shortly after the accomplishment of his heroic deed.

Wounded severely 7/18/18
Distinguished Service Cross

Near Cantigny and again in the battle of July 18, 1918, southwest of Soissons, France.

Having on the morning of that day (July 18, 1918) advanced his batteries 3 miles and, finding that the normal liaison between Artillery and Infantry was not then operating and that observation of fire from near the batteries was impossible, went forward himself to locate our Infantry front line and to personally conduct fire on the enemy's forces. He advanced through heavy enemy artillery and machine-gun fire over a terrain easily visible to the enemy to the front line of the supported infantry at Chaudun, where he drew down a violent shelling from enemy artillery. Undeterred by this and seeing German machine-gun detachments advancing to position a short distance from him, he continued to seek a favorable point of observation. While engaged in this dangerous and self imposed mission he was desperately wounded. This inspiring action on the part of the battalion commander, locating and supporting the advance Infantry elements, permitted the supported Infantry to seize and hold a line ahead of adjacent units, and, protected by its supporting Artillery, to hold the lead in the attack of the Tenth French Army.

1 Div Citation for Gallantry in Action Displayed conspicuous skill in handling his battalion when it was subjected to an overwhelming gas concentration in such a manner as to preserve the mission of his guns. with a minimum injury to the personnel.

1 Div Citation for Gallantry in Action
During the operations connected with the capture and defense of Cantigny, May 27-31, 1918.
By courageous and skillful conduct in the command of his battalion of the 6th Field Artillery, by which he secured great accuracy of fire of his guns, contributed materially to the success of the operation.
French Croix de Guerre (Palm)

A very skillful commander of an artillery battalion. Was severely wounded in a reconnaissance that he made under heavy artillery and machine-gun fire.

French Croix de Guerre (Gilt Star)
 A very zealous officer of great worth and possessing fine qualities of leadership. During the offensive of Soissons, July 18, 1918, as commander of a battalion of field artillery of the 1st Division, he contributed largely to the success of the operations of his division by his fine courage, his indefatigable zeal, and his skill. He led his unit with great offensive spirit until he was severely wounded.

Near Moulinas, France, July 15, 1918.
Private Curry voluntarily took up an abandoned automatic rifle and with one man moved to an exposed flank and opened a continuous harassing fire on the advancing enemy.
Although exposed to direct fire, Private Curry kept his gun in action until an Infantry platoon could take up a better defensive position.

For consistent and loyal work in command of the battery echelon and in supplying ammunition during the operations on the Vesle, at St. Mihiel, and on the Meuse. He continually supplied the battery with ammunition once or twice a night, sometimes under heavy shelling, and, through his determination in the face of such obstacles as traffic congestion and difficult roads, never once failed in his mission. Although wounded while in the Bois de Septsarges, he refused to go to the rear, and instead continued in charge of the echelon, later taking command of the firing battery.

9 Inf Brig Citation for Gallantry in
For exceptional devotion to duty, energy and bravery, on October 14th, 1918, north of Cunel, France, Major Davis led his Battalion in the attack on the Bois-de-la-Poutliere, with efficiency and great personal leadership. The steadiness and determination of the Battalion was greatly due to his coolness and fine example under most severe artillery and machine gun fire. His continual presence along the position occupied by his troops, regardless of shell fire, preserved their organization, and inspired them to their successful drive through the enemy position.

Action
Oct. 12, 1918 (approximate date).
For exceptional bravery and devotion to duty near Cunel, France.
When under severe shell and machine gun fire, with utter disregard for his personal safety, administered first aid and personally carried wounded from the field; remaining on duty until he fell exhausted. His work was so commendable that he was placed in charge of the 3d Battalion Litter Bearers by
